AYER'S AGUE CUBE.

QUANINE AND ABSENIO

Form the basis of many of the Ague remedies in the market, and are the last resort of Physicians and people who know no better medicine to employ, for this distressing complaint. The effects of either of these drugs are destructive to the system, producing headache, intestinal disorders, vertigo, d zziness, ringing in the ears, and depression of the constitutional health. AYER'S AGUE CURE is a vegetable discovery, containing neither quining, arsenic, nor discovery, containing neither quinine, arsenic, nor any deleterious ingredient, and is an infallible and rapid cure for every form of Fever and Aque. Its effects are permanent and certain, and no injury can result from itruse. Besides being a positive cure for Fever and Ague in all ite forms, it is also a superior renedy for Liver Complaints. It is an excellent tonic and preventive, as well as cure, of all complaints peculiar to malarious, marshy and mias-matic districts by direct action on the Liver and biliary apparatus, it stimulates the system to a vigorous, healthy condition.

The lady is really as aggressive as a snapping turtle. Lord Beaconsfield advanced to her, has in hand, and with a sweet smile on his counte nance. "I rejoice to see you here," he said, patronizingly. "The English people are always glad to recognize gentus, no matter in what shape or from what quarter it may come. Ac cept their homage, my dear Madame-accept their homage."

"Vat you know of ze English peoples?" enquired Madame Bernhardt sharply. "H'm!" replied his Lordship, with a deep blush. "I may say, perhaps, that I represent them to some extent. They are mine, as one might say, by adoption. But come, come, Madame! Let us not have words. Be amiable, my dear: be amiable." "I see," replied the lady, her countenance suddenly becoming rosy with joyful surprise, "I see. Zose raven locks are false. Zose teeth are not ze ones you had when first I see you Zose wieenkles are new. "Drat it!" exclaimed his Lordship with uncontrollable chagrin. "This comes of wearing that new wig and putting on airs. I bid you good day, Madame. I have to prepare a document for the signature of her Majesty the Queen."- [Special cable to Buffalo Express. PAINTING is so common with some persons particularly women, and the cause of it is so little understood by non-professional people that some knowledge on the subject often proves valuable. Faintness consists in a temporary failure of the activity of the heart, the blood not being properly circulated in conse-quence. Although it does not reach the head, the sufferer loses all clearness of vision, and, if not prevented, may fall, the fall not infrequently restoring the normal condition. There is no convulsion, and though he-more probably she-can hardly be called conscious, he is not profoundly unconscious as to be incapable of arousal, as happens in epilepsy. There are all degrees of faintness, from merely feeling faint and looking somewhat pale to positive and complete swooning. In some cases one faint is no sooner cured than another and another succeed, hour after hour, even day after day. It is scarcely necessary to say that such cases are serious and need prompt treatment. The causes are various. Some persons are so easily affected that they swoon if they cut their finger or see any one bleed. Their defect is over-sensitive nerves and weak muscular fiber. The heart is essentially a muscle, which is feeble in some, strong in others—feeble generally in women and strong in men. Whatever weakens the heart and muscles commonly produces faintness, close, foul air being an active cause. Whatever greatly affects the an active cause. Whatever greatly affects the nerves, such as bad news or the sight of the disagreeable or horrible, may induce a swoon; and loss of blood is another and a serious incitement. Sound health, naturally accompanied by firm nerves and muscles. is the best preventive of faintness. The majority of vigorous men go through all kinds of severe and painful experiences without fainting, while delicate men and many women swoon at trifles. American women, who used to faint continually—in crowds, at bad news, at scenes of distress—now faint comparatively seldom; and the fact is ascribed to their relinquishment, for the most part, of the habit of lacing, to their increased exercise in the open air and their better physical condition. Not one American woman faints to-day where, thirty years ago, 25 women fainted, and the diminution of the disorder, always the result of direct causes, is an unmistakable evidence. which other things corroborate, of the marked amelioration of the health of the highly organized, extremely sensitive, but flexible and enduring women of our complex race—[N.Y.Times]

PAINLESS DEATH .- In one of his lectures Prof. Tyl da'l spoke of the great probability that entire absence of pain accompanied death by lightning. It is popularly supposed that an impression made by the nerves, a blow or puncture is felt at the precise instant it is inflicted, but such is not the fact. The seat of sensation is the brain, and intelligence of the injury must be transmitted to this organ through a certain set of nerves, acting as telegraph-wires, before set of nerves, acting as telegraph-wires, before we become conscious of pain. This transmission or telegraphing from the seat of injury to the brain takes time, longer or shorter, accord-ing to the distance of the injured part from the brain, and according to the susceptibility of the particular nervous system operated on. Heimholtz, by experiments, determined the velocity of this nervous transmission in the frog to be a little over eighty-five feet per second, in the whale about one hundred feet per second, and in man at an average of two hundred feet per second. If, for instance, a whale fifty feet long were wounded in the tail, it would not be conscious of the injury little half a second after the would had been until half a second after the wound had been inflicted. But this is not the only ingredient in the delay. It is believed that in every act of consciousness a determined molecular arrangement of the brain takes place, so that, beside the interval of transmission; a still further time is necessary for the brain to put itself in order for its molecules to take up the motions or positions necessary for the completion of consciousness. Helmholtz considers that one-tenth of a second is required for this purpose. of a second is required for this purpose. There-tenth would clapse before an impression made upon its caudal nerves could be responded to by a whale fifty feet long. EFFECT OF IMAGINATION ON THE WEATHER. A citizen doing business on Griswold street has given this weather question a great deal of thought, and yesterday he began a series of experiments to ascertain whether imagination hasn't as much to do with a hot day as the thermometer. At 9 o'clock in the morning he entered his office, built a brisk fire in the stove, closed the door, and sat down to his newspaper, having his chair close to the stove. In a few minutes one of his customers opened the door, and before he could express his surprise the official called out:-

fore, in the case of a whale, one second and one-

"Come in! What a change in the weather since last night! I hated to build a fire, but it was positively like November in here. Come over by the stove." "Has-has the weather changed?" hesitatingly inquired the caller. "Changed! Why there's a difference of 31 degrees since 10 o'clock last night! Hear what the weather report says: Northerly winds, great change in temperature, with indications of a severe frost at night! I wish I had brought down my spring overcoat."

"Well, I felt the change, but I didn't realize the full power of it," said the other as he edged over to the stove and rubbed his hands. "You should watch these things and dress accordingly. I wouldn't dare come out in that thin coat. First you know you'll have a chill." "I-I know I'm rather careless, but I must look out for myself in future. This are feels rather good.' "Yes, it does; you'd better get thoroughly warmed up before you go out in the raw air."

The caller remained there for at least 10 minutes, all the time standing beside the not stove, and yet when the thermometer marked 100 degrees he made no complaints and went out saying that he would go home and get on a thicker coat .- [Detroit Free Press.

RASHES PRODUCED BY DRUGS IN DAILY USE. There are certain well-known and constantly known drugs that give rise to cutaneous eruptions which are very alarming to patients and puzzling to those administering the offending agent; hence it is necessary for all using such drugs to be able to recognize the rashes they produce, so as to allay at once anxiety on the subject. To classify somewhat we will place these remedies under two categories: First, those which produce their effects by internal cost of the defaulting purchaser.

Under the second heading we group iodide of starch, arnica, sulphur, chrysophanic acid and croton oil. Tar comes under both headings croton oil. Tar comes under both headings It must not be for a moment supposed that these drugs always produce such effects whenever and to whomsoever given, for as a matter of fact there all grades of liability—some no matter how large the dose never suffer, others with a moderate dose suffer greatly; in fact in some cases persons can not take the offending drug in any shape at all.

How Texans Show Their Friends A friend gives the following little anecdote as illustrative of the neighborly love of the people of Texas;—He and a Texan, who was contemplating the purchase of a ranche somewhere in Truckee meadows, were out on horseback looking at the farms and cattle ranges along the river. As they leisurely followed the meanderings of the stream they presently saw two horsemen on the opposite bank. As the two parties approached each other the Texan with our friend recognized in one of the men on the opposite bank of the river an old friend and a man who was one of his nearest neighbors at home. The two men halled each other from the opposite banks of the stream, and exchanging greetings, many friendly questions were put and answered. The men were evidently delighted to meet each other, and their only regret appeared to be that they encountered one another in a place where it was impossible for them to clasp and shake hands, the river not being fordable on account of the swiftness and the rocky and treacherous nature of the channel, while the nearest bridge was five miles above. Both men lamented these unfortunate circumstances very much, but at length a way of getting over the difficulty suggested itself to the drover, whose pet name was "Broncho Bill."

"I say, Sam!" cried Broncho, "it's a little rough for old friends and neighbors to meet away out here, thousands of miles from home, and then have to part in this way. Got yer pistol with yer?" "I bev!" cried Sam; "allers carry her!" "Good! That some comfort, ef we can't get across this yar dam stream to shake hands. why, than's nothin to prevent us from takin' a shot at each other. Jist ride up to your left that a rod or two. That, now, jist one good old neighborly, home shot!"

The men rede aside, and bang! bang! went their pistols. "Yer smashed the pummel of my saddle," cried Broncho; "yer see the cussed hoss shied a little just as yer turned loose, or yer might a plumped me good." "You done better, Bill; you got into the flesh of my left arm 'bout half an inch. Good morning to you, a safe journey to yer, and tell the folks at home we met and had a good sociable time together! "Thank yer, an' the same to you-bet I'll give em a good account of you.' Sam then turned to our friend and with tears in his eyes said: "God bless him! It is a great comfort to meet an old friend and neighbor like him away out here in this wilderness place. A kinder, more accommodative and agreeable gen-tleman never lived. I wouldn't a-missed seein' him for $50!"—[Virginia (Nev.) Chronicle. Clearing Away a Railroad Wreck,

A gentleman tells me that he has seen one of the most extraordinary pieces of executive dis-patch in his life, on Vanderbilt's railroad: "I was coming down the Hudson River road," he said, "two or three days ago, when the train was stopped by a wreck near Hudson. A freight train had been thrown off the track. The engine was lying imbedded in a hole, one car was lying across the track, another had lost its trucks and was flat on the track, and the tender of the locomotive was also deeply imbedded. We had waited there an hour and a-half or two hours and twenty trains had been strucks. hours, and twenty trains had been stopped. They had yanked one of the cars up on jack screws, as if to run trucks under it, and then get it out of the way. It looked as if we were going to stay until night, and we began to think about finding a steamboat or buggy or something to get on to New York. when all at once an engine and wrecking car heaved in sight. Before the engine had come to a stop, we could hear the road-master's voice ring out, giving his orders before he had seen the situation. He seemed to be a familiar with everything on the spot as if he had been there all night. There was an engine off at some distance, but doing nothing. He called out to the engineer to come up and make fast to the buried locomotive. In half a minute the engine was attached and pulling to get the other out of the hole, and at the second effort the great mass of iron came up sullenly and was hauled out of the road. 'Pass that rope over the top of that car and make it fast to that tree top of that car and make it fast to that tree yonder,' he cried. It was done. 'Now five hundred of you lay hold of that rope,' he shouted. The entire little army, under the inspiration of that voice, laid hold of the rope, using the tree for a purchase; and they pulled the car across the track square out of the way by main strength. Then the rails which had been bent were straightened with heavy hammers and hailed down. 'Come on here with that engine,' he cried again, 'and make fast to this truck.' With another tremendous pull the whole thing came out of the ground like a tree by the roots and was rushed off. 'Now start that first train,' cried the man. In less than two minutes from the time of his arrival what looked to be a the time of his arrival what looked to be a week's job was out of the way and the passen-gers went on."-[Letter to Cincinnati Enquirer.

LOVE OF INDIAN MOTHERS.—Emma, a promising young Indian girl at the school at Red Lake, died on the 22d. A half-breed woman, accompanied only by her little boy, walked all the way from Qu' Ap-pelle to Winnipeg—350 miles—to try and reclaim two daughters who had fallen into evil courses at Winnipeg. At the united persuasion of their mother, Father Lacombe and the police the girls consented to return. A contribution was taken up by Policeman Lawler, and the reunited family made the recipients of meat, flour and other provisions for the trip westward, and a start was made for home—the mother proud and happy that her mission had not been in vain, and forgetting all her cares and troubles in the restoration of her long-lost children.—
